Account Activation:
*Note: If your account is already active, please follow these instructions for logging in:

Once you have your account active, you can login to your studio machine by doing the following:

A. Select the Switch User button
B. Type in your username as: GSAPP\uni
C. Type in the default password, gs@pp201τ
D. You will be prompted then to change your password

*Note: If your account is not active, please follow the instructions below:

Please take a moment to read through this and follow the instructions on how to activate your account. Also, see below for information on the "default" account that we will leave active for the first 1-2 weeks of the semester to facilitate you activating your account as well as information on logging in for the first time to your studio machine.

1. Logon to the studio computer with username: gsapp, password: gs@pp201τ (same password sent to you from GSAPP admissions)

2. Go to: http://www.arch.columbia.edu and using your CU UNI and password, choose the "LOGIN" option in the upper right.

3. Once you've logged into the GSAPP website go to http://www.arch.columbia.edu/computer. Read the GSAPP computer agreement and fill in your name (as you used it for registration...if it doesn't match the way you filled out your school paperwork your account won't be found) and your CU e-mail address and click to "accept the terms and conditions...."

4. If you registered on time and your name was included on our list, you should now see your username (your uni) and the new default GSAPP password that you can use and that you are required to change on your first login.
5. If your information is not found and you appear to not have an account, don't panic. It usually means that you registered late and weren't on our enrolled list at the time the accounts were made. If you find yourself in this situation you should:

A. Go to the Admissions Office to confirm your status and make sure you are actually registered.
B. Once your status is confirmed go to "Computer Account Request Form" found at http://www.arch.columbia.edu/resources/help/accounts

Now that you have your account and have changed the password to one of your own choosing, you're all set. Good Luck.
